

head(amame) V2.0

July 7, 2023

The one you've been waiting for!

Change Log

- Cone Adjustment mechanism completely redesigned for better longevity.
- Headband spring "scallop" adjusted to suit new mechanism and allow for better feeling adjustment.
- Added leather mount holes, improving fit for people with larger heads.
- Leather Clamps revised to match min(amame) design.
- File license now allows modification! Go nuts!
- Adjusted file organization to tell users which parts specifically need to be printed with PLA vs PETG/ABS/ASA
- Added flat leather pattern for TPU printing.

Additional News

Vector Finesse becomes head(amame)!

As of the release of these files, head(amame) has graduated to its own identity! The purpose remains to deliver quality audio in a format anyone can get their ears on. The delivery will be different... in a good way!

As you've likely read elsewhere, John and I have amicably split as it became obvious my drive in this project was different than his. We remain great friends, and I have taken over control of the entire head(amame) project as well as the online store. Despite this release, there's a ton of work to be done to keep it moving forward. Work that I can't do alone. I've spent the past few months focusing on how this project has grown and what can be done to help it grow further.

The biggest thing I can do for head(amame)'s growth is step out of the way.

That's the reason I've opened the license for modification, hired someone to fill orders, and brought in a designer to help me with the rebrand. I'm only one guy! I need to make sure that I'm not the bottleneck in this company!

These last few months getting V2 to its current state has felt different than previous updates. The V2 design really stands on its own two feet. The mechanism is way better than before, the sound is as good as ever, and I'm confident that future iterations have a strong foundation to build on.

I'm now happy to hand it off and see the mods people come up with!

Wrapping up

These Release Notes are always a fun place to deliver a message to those who I think truly care about head(amame). Today that message is THANK YOU! I constantly look forward to seeing your builds posted all over the internet!

If you are looking for the CAD files to get modding, they are currently in the Patreon.

Don't forget to submit for a serial number the count starts now for V2 builds!

Happy printing!
